

Email From: Jack Cooper, Food Industry Environmental Network

Subject: Plain English regulatory text of the April 16 Proposal and the Final Rule which will be based on the Proposal

When the final rule is issued, please review it for Plain English wording, so an average person will understand what is being said:

An example follows:

"The proposed amendment further clarifies that synthetic substances, except those in paragraphs (c), (j), (k), and (l), may only be used when the provisions of Sec. 205.206(a) through (d) prove insufficient to prevent or control the target pest."

Only a lawyer with extensive experience in the rule would know what this sentence means.

Please review the entire rule to ensure that sentences are not written as a law may be written, but written in language that the general public can understand.

Thank you for considering this request.

Jack Cooper on April 16 at 9:40 am